In the field of forced migration the European Union's contribution heavily depends on the cooperation and solidarity of the members. Hungary, the entry point on the Western Balkan route has chosen a radically restrictive and anti-EU policy in 2015-2016. The theories of securitization, identitarian populism and crimmigration offer a frame to the analysis, which will take apart law and policy, to re-assemble them around six key concepts which explain what Hungary in fact does: denial, deterrence, obstruction, punishment, free riding (lack of solidarity) and breach of law (domestic, EU and international). All these raise questions about the EU principle of loyal cooperation.

Professor Boldizsár Nagy read law and philosophy and received his PhD at the Eötvös Loránd University in Budapest and pursued international studies at the Johns Hopkins University SAIS Bologna Center. Besides the uninterrupted academic activity both at the Eötvös Loránd University (since 1977) and the Central European University (since 1992) he has been engaged both in governmental and non-governmental actions. He acted several times as expert for the Hungarian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Council of Europe and UNHCR and participated at various inter-governmental negotiations. In the Gabcikovo-Nagymaros case before the International Court of Justice he acted as one of Hungary’s counsel. He is a co-founder and former board member of the European Society of International Law and member of the editorial board of the International Journal of Refugee Law and of the European Journal of Migration and Law. He is co-founder and editor of the on-line Refugee Law Reader. His earlier teaching venues include Ankara, Beijing, Brussels, Geneva, Moscow, New York, Tbilisi and Yerevan. More than two dozens books were co-authored and/or edited by him. In October 2012 he published a monograph on the development of the Hungarian refugee law and refugee affairs between the end of the Cold War and Hungary’s accession to the EU.
